

PATRICK CHELF

VP of Sales, United States

Pat Chelf spent five years as head of Global Sales for ROHO before assuming responsibility for U.S. sales operations at PDG Mobility in 2015. He oversees a team of 30 independent sales professionals.

His professional career includes early experience working in advertising for a variety of agencies in the Chicago area, before holding positions in marketing, sales, and business management during two decades in 3M's healthcare business unit.

He left 3M in 2001 to take on a leadership role in Otto Bock Healthcare Americas, and later served as Director of North American business development for Argo Medical, the world's first FDA approved powered exoskeletal walking system.

Beyond his professional career, Pat has been active in several national and local charities. He was a board member for the Amputee Coalition of America for 10 years, serving as Vice-Chair for two. He has also contributed his time and energy to youth soccer and to Second Harvest Minnesota.

Pat attended the University of Illinois for his undergraduate studies and attended graduate school at the University of Minnesota. He lives in Minneapolis with his wife of over 40 years and has a son in the health care industry. Pat is an avid tennis player, enjoys gardening in Minnesota's three-day long growing season, and 'lives' for English Premier League Soccer on Saturday mornings.
